

Deep Learning

Deep learning is a part of machine learning based on neural networks with multiple layers.

Neural Networks

A neural network contains interconnected units called neurons. Layers transform input information into useful representations.

CNNs

Convolutional neural networks are commonly used for image and computer vision tasks.

Transformers

Transformer architectures use attention mechanisms and are widely used for language models and many generative AI systems.